Digital intellectual property and copyright

The Australian Office of St John Ambulance Australia Ltd (SJAA Ltd) is a Registered Training Organisation in partnership with State and Territory St John offices, to deliver digital and in-person first aid training.

SJAA Ltd develops print and digital learning and teaching resources for our partners to deliver their first aid courses to the Australian community. These resources are the copyright of SJAA Ltd.

In producing these resources, SJAA Ltd aligns to course requirements as set by the Australian Skills Quality Authority (ASQAS). First aid protocols align with approved guidelines from the Australian Resuscitation Council. All material is current at the time of publication.

Third party copyright

All material contained in SJAA Ltd's resources is copyrighted, or the copyright of a third party. All such rights are reserved.

In all instances where third party material has been used (e.g. images, video, music, etc), SJAA Ltd has either been granted permission to use third party material or holds a licence to use that material. Acknowledgements are properly stated where required.

Third party material contained in SJAA Ltd resources cannot be used in any way except as permitted or licenced. RTO partners must not use or distribute any part of the materials produced by SJAA Ltd in any way without obtaining permission or licence to do so from SJAA Ltd, or the relevant third party.

If any breach is found of use of SJAA Ltd copyright or third party material, the Australian Office will seek recompense for payment of copyright infringement fees.

Please contact Gab Lhuede, National Publications Manager (at the contact details above) if you require further information.
